Socioeconomic factors are community characteristics that result in increased vulnerability to pollutants. Indicators representing socioeconomic factors that have been shown to heighten a population’s vulnerability to environmental pollutants were selected.

Socioeconomic Factors Indicators:
1. Educational Attainment
2. Income
3. Poverty
4. Race/Ethnicity

Data Sources:
- U.S. Census American Community Surveys, Five-year estimates, U.S. Census Bureau
- American FactFinder, U.S. Census Bureau